LOADING CYCLE DEPENDENCE OF NEUTRAL ZONE RANGE AND END STIFFNESS ON THE ADOLESCENT BOVINE LUMBAR SPINE

*Nguyen, B N; *+Bachus, K N; *Brodke, D S
+*Orthopaedics Bioengineering Research Laboratory, Department of Orthopaedics, University of Utah, Salt Lake City, Utah 84112. 801.581.5200, Fax: 801.585.3845, kent.bachus@hsc.utah.edu

Discussion Each curve was sectioned into three regions: lower stiffness, neutral zone, and upper stiffness. The lower and upper stiffness was considered to be the steep linear region of the loading phase, while the neutral zone is the linear region in between the steep regions.